DIY Language Learning Adventures

① Hello, my fellow language nerds. It's no secret that ^{all of us are} everyone is different. That means that all language-learning techniques work with ~~diff~~ efficiency for everyone. Today I want to share my favourite the methods that work best for me.

② I'm a person who gets bored easily. Being a person raised on the Internet with a phone glued to my hand it's hard for me to focus for a long time, especially if the piece of info I'm studying is long and ~~monotonous~~. This way I discovered that whatever I use to study languages should be short and quite engaging. My personal English journey starts with a cartoon called "Steven Universe" because it has everything: ^{there} catchy songs, short episodes and very intriguing storylines.

③ I also have a piece of advice for those who want to read books in their target-language, but don't know how to get there. I know that the most common tip is to start with fairy tales for children, but they are really boring and you know ~~at~~ all of ~~they~~ the storylines like the back of our hand. Well, I have a solution that I found myself: Start your reading experiments with ~~fantasy~~ ~~fantasy~~ - fan-made stories that focus on possible plots with ~~chance~~ ~~chance~~ ~~and...~~ that you already ~~know~~

DIY LANGUAGE LEARNING

ADVENTURES

Hi, my fellow language nerds! ~~Hi~~ We all know that everyone's mind functions differently and each person has a language learning technique that works best for them. Being raised with a phone glued to my hand, it's hard for me to focus, ~~for~~ especially if the piece of information ~~is~~ is long and boring. This is how I learn languages in my predicament.

WATCHING CARTOONS

Cartoons were a perfect solution to my problem as they are engaging and use simple vocabulary. My personal English cartoons journey started with "Steven Universe" ~~is~~ because it had everything I needed plus ~~an~~ intriguing plot and catchy songs. Using this method, I could watch movies in no time.

READING FANFICS

Everybody who wants to read books in their target language is advised to start with fairy tales, but they're boring and already familiar. My alternative to them were fanfics, fan-made stories based on popular media. They can be found on "Archive of Our Own" and "Fanfiction.net". They often use simple vocabulary as they are written by non-professionals and can be filtered according to your preferences. ~~while searching~~. Fanfiction gave me a good start and in two years I read my first serious book without a dictionary.

PLAYING FAMOUS

Have you ever pretended to be a celebrity filming a daily vlog? When alone and bored, some people start talking to imaginative audience about the tasks they're doing: ~~cooking dinner or applying make-up~~. Start doing it in your target language and ~~you~~ soon you will be able to joke or even reflect on the purpose of life in it. Take it from me, I went from being the ~~gr~~ always silent girl in my English class to a chatter-box very quickly.

The tips above helped me become proficient in English. Now I wanna take up Greek and am looking for new ones. Please drop your language learning ideas in the comments below.
