④ Dear future me,

I hope you are doing great.

As you may remember, I have decided to focus on my health, both physical and mental, because I'm feeling ^{little} worn-out due to preparation for the upcoming exams. I have already took up yoga and stretching, which I do twice a week. Surely, I had to change my dietary habits as well, so now I stick to ~~to~~ 16-8 eating plan. In other words, I eat during 8 hours; as for the rest of a day, I ~~can~~ ^{can} only drink water or tea.

In order to improve my mental health condition, I attend 'Psychology ^{is not} ~~isn't~~ mythology' classes at school, where I learn how to maintain ~~a way~~ emotions. I must admit it's really helpful! Moreover, I have a journal, in which I write down ^{everything} ~~that~~ is on my mind.

 To be honest, I am getting ^{чистая} overwhelmed when I think ~~I won't succeed in~~ I won't change for the better, but such aspirations as being stronger and having more energy make me keep going.

By the way, what are your aspirations? Have they changed? As for the challenges, are you getting rid of bad habits like ~~staying~~ skin picking and late night craving? Is it ~~hard~~ difficult to keep exercising and ^{not} eating junk food? What are your biggest victories?

Anyway, I'm already grateful for the self-discipline and self-care practices I've adopted.
 I believe they show my body how much
 it means to me.

It seems to be all that I wanted to say.
 Take care of yourself.

All the love,

13 year old version of you
