Key future me,
It's hard to believe that it's been ~~3~~ five years already, isn't it? I sincerely hope that you are doing well both mentally and physically. Either way, I wanted to ask you a couple of questions.

~~First~~ First off, have you kept up with your regular gym visits? I want you to know that even if you haven't, I'm still incredibly proud of you for taking care of yourself. Also, have you managed to learn ^{how} to do pull ups? If so, then I am very excited for you! You must be so strong and resilient now. I wish I could be as strong as you.

Secondly, how is your relationship with food now? Do you still struggle with unhealthy eating habits? Have you lost some fat or gained some muscle? In ~~any~~ any case, I pray that you have learned the hardest and most important thing, which is to love yourself and your body no matter what. I also wanted to check in with a ~~new~~ healthy habit that I've started recently. Are you still making the choice to not eat sugar ~~??~~? It would be great if I could manage it for five years straight.

Also, are you doing better mentally now? I hope you finally checked in with a professional and got that nightmare problem sorted out. I can already imagine myself sleeping peacefully five years into the future.

That's about everything that I wanted to ask you. Please don't feel disheartened if you haven't met a lot of the goals that I've set for you. I want you to remember that what ~~happens~~ matters the most is your own happiness. If you are content with yourself, that means that you are already the person I ~~is~~ always strived to be. I trust your ~~own~~ judgement.

Stay strong.

Sincerely,

Present me.
